

The Crew for Drew

Lymphoma Battle

Constable Drew Tice has spent his working life helping the eastern suburbs community both as an Ambulance Victoria paramedic and currently as a police officer at the Croydon Police station.

Drew is just 40 years young and is battling his second bout of cancer. Drew and his wife have 2 boys, Harvey 3 years and Luca 7 months.

About 6 years ago, whilst working as a paramedic, Drew was diagnosed with lymphoma, a particularly aggressive cancer that targets the patient's white blood cells.

Drew visited medical specialists in September 2017 for a check-up and was devastated to learn that the lymphoma had returned more aggressively than in his first battle with the disease.

Drew has undergone intense chemotherapy over the last few months which has taken its toll upon him both physically and mentally. He was in the final stages of preparation for a bone marrow and stem cell transplant procedure which would have bolstered his battle against this aggressive cancer.

We are hoping to raise funds to assist Drew and his young family towards the costs of the medical treatment and the upkeep and day to day costs of running a family home whilst unable to work.
